4 - Importance of the document:
The system of endowment "Waqf" is considered a great genius developed by Muslims to be close to Allah through participating in building their societies and immortality of earth. The first endowment in Islam was the mosque of Qibaa which was founded by Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) when he came to Medina, then western people excerpted it and transferred it to the Ottoman state in the nineteenth century A.D and called it later civilian society organizations (1).

It is known that the Islamic endowment system – for thirteen centuries – represented a wonderful image of human cooperation and was a resource of good when a lot of organizations depended on endowments, such as mosques, schools, Zawayas "small mosques", Ribats, as well as providing money for the poor. This was until they crumbled during recent ages except for the endowment of holy Mecca that had a great interest. Thus, endowments in Mecca are still preserved through instruments and documents that document them completely. Thus, the endowments of sultan Mohamed Rashad Khan V., one of the most important Ottoman sultans- in Mecca are considered among the important endowments that developed in the Ottoman period. His endowments varied between civil structures that were rented, then the rent was used for spending on the two holy Mosques (among them the text of our documentation). The documentation included different endowments; one of them was the house that included upper and lower housing "cells", facilities, legality rights, and a cistern at the bottom of the house, as well as shops and cells.

This endowment continued till the fourteenth century A.D but it was removed for enlarging the holy mosque in Mecca.

Publishing this document was very important for proving the continuity of the endowment in Mecca especially.

As for the importance of the document, it was preserved in the record of roofers in holy Mecca during the Ottoman period for keeping it. This document contains details of the lists of endowments, so the researcher explained all important terms that were mentioned in it with comments, interpreting the obscure phrases through historical resources and available specialized books, hoping that the research will add new information about endowments, spending its income in holy Mecca.

5 – The study of document:
